A CALL FROM THE SEA.

Green waves under her fore-foot,
Gray meadows dim on the lea;
We have done with joy and sorrow,
Swing round her head to the sea.

Nine men of the schooner Annie,
Bound out of the bay again,
And the old songs die behind us
In the clank of her mooring-chain.

For the East and West are calling,
A wind blows out of the South,
And the winter stars lift brighter,
And the brine stings salt on her mouth.

Nine men of the schooner Annie
(Love is as a tale long told),
We go to the mother that bore us
And the things we knew of old.

The song of wind in the rigging,
The drumming rain on the sail,
The swing of the roaring chorus
As they lay her head to the gale.

Ah! Love, will ye deem us cruel
That we leave ye here alone?
But the wide sea calls her children,
Each goes at last to his own.

Green waves under her fore-foot,
Gray meadows dim on the lea;
We have done with joy and sorrow,
Swing round her head to the sea!

Four brothers of the name of Jackson were raised in Deering Lodge, Portland, June 13th, in the presence of 300 brethren. A lunch followed.

Mystic Shrine.

Kora Temple had a field day at Lewiston June 1st, when 700 members met to welcome the Grand Potentate of the Order, Fred A. Hines of Los Angeles, California. There was a fine procession and a big clam-bake at Lake Auburn. In the afternoon there were automobile rides and field games and at 5 o'clock a banquet in Lewiston. In the evening a class of fifteen were initiated.

On May 20th, at St. Stephen's Church, Portland, memorial services were held in honor of King Edward 7th, after which the special guests were received at the Portland Club. Grand Master Ashley A. Smith with his officers attended to represent the Grand Lodge, and at the Club he gave the following toast:

Our words and our tears mingle to-day with the mourning of a mighty nation, and in the language of our ancient Scriptures,—that undimmed Light in Masonry, we say, "How are the mighty fallen! How is the strong staff broken!"

The mournful martial music of a nation's sorrow sweeps across the seven seas, and catching some echo of it, we bow in memory and veneration of the gracious, gentle, great and kingly soul, who for many honored years held the potent gavel of Masonic Mastership, and now at the call of the King of Kings and Lord of Lords, has laid down the sceptre of dominion and free from the concealments of the flesh has touched the unseen and eternal reality back of all Masonic symbols, and sleeps with his fathers in honored sepulture, which with the last great Laureate of his beloved country who sang of England's deathless fame, we, too,

"Doubt not that for one so true
There must be other nobler work to do.
And that he wears a truer crown
Than any wreath that we can weave him.
Speak no more of his renown,
Lay your earthly fancies down,
And in the vast cathedral leave him,
God accept him, Christ receive him."

Governor Fernald followed with the toast:

To the memory of one, the ruler of a nation, whom the world mourns to-day, His Most Excellent Majesty, the late Edward the Seventh, King and Emperor, whose influence radiates throughout the world and whose dignified and happy reign was made illustrious by his lofty aim, that peace through justice should reign among all the people of the earth.

St. John's Day.

Maine Commandery of Gardiner spent the day at Tokoma near Gardiner.

Maine has invited Lewiston to be its guest in 1911 on St. John's day and has appointed a committee of arrangements.

Haverhill Commandery of Haverhill, Mass., arrived in Portland Thursday and went straightway to Peaks Island.

Friday, Portland Commandery took them in charge and gave them a dinner at Long Island, trolley rides around the city after the return, and a banquet at the Falmouth in the evening where 300 attended.

St. Alban Commandery of Portland, 90 strong, started on Thursday morning for Bangor and were joined at Waterville by DeMolay of Skowhegan. St. John's of Bangor gave them a banquet Thursday evening and on Friday took them to Bar Harbor where they had dinner, returning to Bangor in time to take the eight o'clock train for home.

Dunlap Commandery of Bath entertained Bradford of Biddeford.

St. Omer Commandery of Waterville entertained Palestine of Belfast and Lewiston of Lewiston at Oakland. There were about 300 in the procession. A banquet was given at the Central Maine fair grounds, at which Grand Commander Warren C. Philbrook presided, and addresses were made by Grand Junior Warden Charles F. Johnson, Grand Senior Warden Ralph E. Crockett, Rev. Ashley A. Smith, Grand Master of Grand Lodge, Thomas H. Bodge, Grand High Priest and James H. Witherell, Grand Master of the Grand Council.

Trinity Commandery of Augusta went to Gurnet on the New Meadows.

Claremont Commandery of Rockland entertained Hugh de Payens of Melrose, Mass., and both were on the new schooner launched that day. The name of the schooner was changed from Tarratine to Hugh de Payens and was christened by Mrs. Milton A. Stone, wife of the Commander of that body.

Hugh de Payens afterwards came to Portland and quartered at Peaks Island.

St. Aldemar Commandery of Houlton entertained Hugh de Payens of Calais and Camden of Camden.

Jerusalem Commandery of Fitchburg, Mass., 300 strong, came to Portland and stopped at Peaks Island.

Many lodges had services on St. John's day or on Sunday, of which the following is a sample :

Belfast, Me., June 27.—The Universalist church was filled to the doors yesterday morning, it being the annual observance of St. John's Sunday, and Grand Master Ashley A. Smith of the Grand Lodge of Maine, addressed the members of Phoenix and Timothy Chase Lodges of Belfast in his own church. The sermon was a masterpiece and was listened to very attentively by the large congregation. Mr. Smith gave the same address in the afternoon in the little church in Stockton, of which he is also pastor, before Pownal Lodge of Stockton and others. Special music was furnished yesterday morning in the Belfast church by the choir, including a soprano solo, "Lead Kindly Light," by Mrs. Evelyn Frost, which was beautifully rendered. Primrose Chapter O. E. S. were present in a body.

Lincoln Lodge of Wiscasset has purchased the old high school building and will remodel it for a lodge hall.

Oriental Star Lodge of Livermore Falls has again been burned out and lost all. The following officers were elected June 22d:

Charles W. Gammon, m; Arthur E. Grose, sw; John N. Sinnett, jw; Geo. O. Eustis, Secy.

Books, Papers, etc.

We have received from A. G. Arnold of El Zagal Temple, Fargo, North Dakota, a finely got up memorial to Frank J. Thompson, Past Potentate and Recorder, octavo 74 pages.

From Merton L. Kimball, Norway, Me., proceedings Allied and Christian Degrees 1909 and 1910.

The Royal Craftsman issued a very handsome and interesting Jubilee Souvenir of the Grand Commandery of New Jersey, May 10, 1910.

The Mexican Masonic Journal is an octavo of 20 pages published quarterly in the city of Mexico at 50 cents gold. It is printed in English and is published and edited by Dr. C. Homer Woodruff. Naturally it will circulate among the English speaking people in Mexico and in the United States. In the States it will bring Mexican Masonry before the Craft for recognition.

The Masonic World is a 16 page quarto paper started July, 1910, in Kansas City, Missouri, monthly $1. Alfred E. Young, manager. It is a handsome paper.

Johannesburg, South Africa, has a new masonic paper to take the place of the Review lately deceased. It is the Masonic Journal, a quarto of 28 pages, published monthly at 12s. 6d. a year, started May 31, 1910. It is an interesting journal.

Advantage of the Blind.

A correspondent, writing on the illiteracy of the native classes, points out a strange anomaly. In devising the "oriental Braille" alphabet for the use of the Indian blind it was found that the sixty-three combinations of the six Braille dots will serve to give the blind one code for the whole of the languages and dialects. With this code the Indian blind are being taught, and no difficulty has arisen in any vernacular. The ordinary native blessed with sight is more unfortunate. The complicated nature of the native syllabaries is such that it requires from 500 to 1,000 sorts of type to print a book even in simple language. Originally the letters of Asoka were simple in form, but the modern varieties of Asoka's letters have become elaborate and complicated.—[Allahabad Pioneer.]

The Work in English Lodges.

In the opening of a masonic lodge in England, the worshipful master addresses the junior warden calling him by name, as Bro. Chapman, for instance, who in turn makes inquiry of the inner guard, whose place in the lodge is within the entrance of the lodge, or the outer door; the questions being somewhat similar to that we, in this country, ask of the junior deacon.

The worshipful master, on taking his station in the east, or, as it is termed, the worshipful master's chair, approaches it from the left side and leaves the chair from the right side. On the platform, and immediately in front of the worshipful master, is a closed-in pedestal, or desk, on which lies the Volume of the Sacred Law, and here the candidate is duly obligated. The worshipful master does not come down on the floor to do masonic work, but, seated in the east, he "rules and governs his lodge." The candidate "on being brought from darkness to light in this degree," is never again in darkness, since he has been "brought to true masonic light," and there is no occasion to teach this lesson a second time. The candidate is invested with a plain lambskin apron, which is provided for that purpose.

When he is passed to the degree of fellow craft, he is invested with a similar apron, having upon it two blue rosettes, one at each lower corner of the apron.

When raised to the sublime degree of master mason, he is invested with an apron surrounded with blue ribbon, having an additional rosette on the flap, three rosettes in all. The master mason apron is property of the member, the tiler usually purchasing it for him and bringing it to the meeting at which the brother is to be raised. The worshipful master and past masters always wear, in place of the three rosettes on the apron perpendicular lines upon horizontal lines, thereby forming three sets of right angles; the length of the horizontal lines to be two and a half inches each, and of the perpendiculars one each; these emblems are usually of silver. In most lodges the worshipful master and his two wardens wear gauntlets, and all officers of the lodge in England wear collars of their office, from the apex of which is suspended the jewel of the office.

The business of the lodge is all done in the first degree, and when occasion requires the lodge is opened in the second or third degree for the purpose of masonic labor, then returns to the first degree.

With us the candidate is told that he is "made a mason" when initiated in the first degree, but he does not acquire any of the rights or privileges of Masonry until he has been "raised to the sublime degree of a master mason." In the English system he is, when initiated, de facto a mason, and can take part in the proceedings of the lodge in that degree.

The working tools of the entered apprentice are the 24-inch gauge, the common gavel and the chisel. Those of the fellow craft are the square, level and the plumb rule. The working tools of a master mason are the skirrit, the pencil and the compasses.

The chaplain is seated at the right of the worshipful master, and at his left is seated the immediate past master and other past masters of the lodge. The immediate past master is an officer of some importance, for in the absence or inability of the worshipful master he performs the duties of that office, and not the wardens, as with us. When the immediate past master is unable to assist the worshipful master then the oldest past master of the lodge is invited to do so. At the closing of the lodge he secures the three great lights, and completes the ritualistic part with a declaration and giving a sign three times, which is unknown to American Masons.

The signs are similar. Due guards are an Americanism, and unknown to masons hailing from a foreign jurisdiction. The due guards as used by us in the fellow craft degree, is virtually the sign in the English work. The master mason is invested with the five signs corresponding in number to five points of fellowship. The junior deacon performs the duties of our senior only in the first degree, the senior deacon taking his proper place in the second and third degrees. The treasurer and secretary are seated at desks situated in the north of the lodge.

The lodges in England, as a rule, have no separate rooms or masonic halls, as we have in this country, but when a meeting is to be held the members are notified to attend at such a hotel at such an hour. In the hotel is provided a room adapted for such purpose and for which no charge is made. The committee having the matter in charge will arrange for a banquet after the lodge meeting, and this is paid for by the members remaining to enjoy the opportunity of having a good time. The annual dues in most lodges are five guineas ($25.00), which covers the cost of banquets after each lodge meeting.

The annual dues to the Grand Lodge are half a crown (60 cents) for each member registered. It is the exception rather than the rule to elect a master for more than one year. In Rosemary Lodge, of which Bro.

Selah R. Van Duzer, Jr., is a founder, and which is composed mainly of university men, a member can serve in the chair but one year, and cannot be elected again to that office. The only officers elected by ballot are the worshipful master and the treasurer. The tiler is elected by show of hands.

The worshipful master appoints the wardens, the secretary, the chaplain, deacons, stewards and inner guard.

The masonic clothing of an officer of the Grand Lodge of England is most elaborate. Gold lace adorns the collar, apron and gauntlets, while from his breast hang the jewels of the office he holds or has held, giving him quite an impressive appearance. —[Hudson River Trestle Board.]

TOMB OF AMENOPHIS

An Egyptian King Who Died Before the Gods Had Left Olympus

In some of the tombs the sarcophagi were still in place—all empty, except one. This was the splendid tomb of Amenophis II, of the eighteenth dynasty, who lived in the glory of Egypt, 1600 B. C.—a warrior who slew seven Syrian chiefs with his own hand. Gaddis had not told us what to expect in that tomb, and when we had followed through the long declining way and reached the royal chamber and beheld there not an empty sarcophagus, but a king asleep, we were struck to silence with that 3,500 years of visible rest.

The top of the sarcophagus is removed, and is replaced by heavy plate glass. Just over the sleeper's face there is a tiny electric globe, and I believe one could never tire of standing there and looking at that quiet visage, darkened by age, but beautiful in its dignity, unmoved, undisturbed by the storm and stress of the fretful years.

How long he has been asleep! The Israelites were still in bondage when he fell into that quiet dose, and for their exodus a century or two later he did not care. Hector and Achilles and Paris and the rest had not battled on the plains of Troy; the gods still assembled on Mount Olympus; Rome was not yet dreamed; he had been asleep nigh a thousand years when Romulus quit nursing the she-wolf to build the walls of that city which would one day rule the world. The rise, the conquest, the decline of its vast empire he never knew. When her armies swept the nations of the east and landed upon his own shores he did not stir in his sleep. The glory of Egypt ebbed away, but he did not care. Old religions perished, new gods and new prophets replaced the gods and prophets he had known—it mattered not to him here in this underworld. Through every change he lay here in peace—just as he lies today, so still, so fine in his kingly majesty, upon his face that soft electric glow which seems in no wise out of place because it has come, as all things come at last, to him who waits. —[Harper's Weekly.]

COLORADO MASONRY. The Gr. Lodge proceedings for 1909, from P. G. M. W. T. Boyd of Cleveland, show 50 lodges, 1306 members and 105 raised. The Correspondence by P. G. M. Boyd is the most important part, being 228 pages against 132 of proceedings, and would give much interesting information if we had time to go through it. He gives no general statistics however.

Bro. Webster Hazelwood, box 688, Andover, Mass., has 14 volumes Grand Lodge of Maine, 8 volumes Gr. Chapter, and 4 volumes Grand Council proceedings, all of Maine, that he will sell at $1 the bound volume. They run back from 1909.

CORNER STONES.—The following from a circular of the Grand Secretary of Mississippi is so instructive that we copy it:

In view of the frequency with which the Grand Lodge is asked to officiate at these functions, the Grand Master directs that attention be called to the regulations and customs of Masonry governing this ceremony. In the first place, only the Foundation Stone of public structures can be laid with masonic honors, and it is indispensable that the craft should be invited by the official body having charge of the erection of the structure to perform it, and this must be approved by the local lodge, which is responsible that all the preparations be made. The Grand Lodge must be formed and opened by an order from the Grand Master, who should be given timely notice, that the Grand Lodge may be summoned.

The Stone must be an oblong square, at least as thick as the wall in which it is to be laid and not a mere slab set on edge and it must be placed in the north-east corner of the building. There must be cut in one of its faces, the year of Masonry and the name of the Grand Master, whether he or another conducts the ceremony. The Stone must be laid before, not after, the walls are run up.

The deposits must be placed in a cavity beneath the stone and not in it, and must include a copy of the Holy Writings and only such other articles as are appropriate, excluding articles of merely personal interest. It should be contained in one or more glass receptacles and sealed with glass cement, or in a copper box soldered so as to exclude moisture. A list of all the articles must be made and given the Acting Grand Secretary before the ceremony begins. There must be provided corn, wine and oil, and if the Grand Master, or a Past Grand Master presides, salt. The corn is not maize but wheat. The wheat will be in a golden vessel and the other elements in silver vessels, to be furnished by the local lodge. It is the province of the Grand Master to make an address himself or to select the masonic orator, and if there are to be other addresses they must precede or follow the masonic ceremonies and not be interjected into them. The text book contains complete directions and these ought to be read by the Master and committee of the local lodge, which must make all of the arrangements and bear all of the expenses.

In pursuing the records of ancient Rome, we find that the Consul Marcellus intended to erect a temple to be dedicated to Virtue and Honor, but being at that time prevented from carrying his scheme into execution, he afterwards altered his plan and erected two temples, so situate that the only avenue to the temple of Honor was through that of Virtue, thereby leaving an eloquent moral to posterity, that the only direct road to Honor must be through that of Virtue. Virtue is the highest exercise and improvement of reason; the integrity, harmony and just balance of affection, the health, strength and beauty of the soul. The perfection of Virtue is to give Reason, that noble faculty, its full scope to obey the dictates of conscience with alacrity, to exercise the defensive talents with fortitude, the public with justice, the private with temperance, and the whole of them with prudence; that is, in a due proportion to each other, with a calm and diffusive benevolence, to love and adore God with an unrivalled and disinterested affection, and to acquiesce in all the wise dispensations of Divine Providence with cheerful resignation.

Every approach toward his standard is a step towards perfection and happiness, and a deviation therefrom tends to vice and misery.—[Missouri Freemason.]

KING EDWARD. The King died from an attack of bronchitis, which had confined his Majesty to his room for three days. He was born on the 9th of November, 1841, and was thus in his sixty-ninth year, and had reigned since the death of Queen Victoria, on 22d January, 1901.

His Majesty was initiated into the Order at Stockholm, in December, 1868, by King Charles XV of Sweden (who died in 1872), and thus the Craft of Freemasonry owes the admittance of the King, when he was Prince of Wales, and the intimate association of the Royal House of England with the work of the Order ever since, to that monarch. Soon afterwards, at the Grand Lodge, on 1st September, 1869, the rank of Past Grand Master of England was conferred upon him. As Master of the Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 259, he initiated the Duke of Connaught into Freemasonry, in 1874. On the resignation of the Marquess of Ripon, 2d September, 1874, he was elected Grand Master of England, and installed at the Royal Albert Hall, Kensington, on 28th April, 1875. In 1877, he presided at Grand Lodge, and appointed his two brothers, the Duke of Connaught and the late Duke of Albany, as Wardens of the Grand Lodge of England. On 22d June, 1886, he installed the Duke of Connaught as Provincial Grand Master of Sussex, at Brighton; and on 15th December, 1890, installed the Duke of Clarence and Avondale as Provincial Grand Master of Berkshire. On succeeding to the Throne, in 1901, he resigned his Grand Mastership, and became the Protector of the Order.

He took particular interest in the charitable side of Freemasonry; was Grand Patron of the three central Institutions, and held 116 votes for the Boys School, sixty-four for the Benevolent, and thirty for the Girls. He presided on behalf of the Girls School Festivals in 1871 and 1888 (Centenary year), for the Boys in 1870 and 1898 (Centenary), and for the Benevolent in 1873.

Among the many interesting masonic events in which the late King took part may be mentioned the occasion on which he headed a deputation from Grand Lodge, and wearing masonic regalia, to Queen Victoria at Buckingham Palace, to present an address to Her Majesty, on her recent happy escape from the hands of an assassin, 10th May, 1882. He presided at a great assembly of Freemasons, at the Royal Albert Hall, to vote an address to her Majesty the Queen on her Jubilee; the entire fees for admission, amounting to £6,321, being divided among the three Masonic Institutions, 13th June, 1887; and headed a deputation from Grand Lodge, at Osborne, to present the before-mentioned Address to Her Majesty, 2d August, 1887. Presided at a great assembly of Freemasons at the Royal Albert Hall, to vote an Address to Her Majesty on her Diamond Jubilee; the fees for admission amounting to £7,012 19s were without deduction voted—one-half to the Prince of Wales Hospital Fund, and the other half divided equally between the three Masonic Institutions, 14th June, 1897.

With masonic ceremonial the late King, as Grand Master, laid the foundation stones of new docks at Bombay, a new market at Gibraltar, and of the new Post Office at Glasgow, in 1876; of Truro Cathedral, in 1880; Memorial Stone of the Indian Institute at Oxford in 1883; Memorial Stone of the new Institute of Art, Science and Literature, at York, in 1883; Memorial Stone of the Chapel of the new Schools of the Royal Asylum of St. Anne's, at Red Hill, in 1884; foundation stone of the new Hospital, Great Yarmouth, in 1887; foundation stone of Technical Schools at Blackburn, in 1888; the Centenary Hall and new wing of the Girls School (opened by the then Prince and Princess of Wales, in 1891); foundation stone of the Sutherland Institute, at Longton in 1897; foundation stone of Christ's Hospital, at Horsham, in 1897, etc.—[Freemason's Chronicle.]

IMITATIVE SOCIETIES. A title sometimes given to those secret societies which imitating the general organization of Freemasonry, differ from it entirely in their character and object. Such, in the last century, when at one time they abounded, were the Bucks, the Sawyers, the Gormogons, and the Gregorians; and, in the present century, the Odd Fellows, the Good Templars, and the Knights of Pythias. Most of them imitate the masons in their external appearance, such as the wearing of aprons, collars, and jewels, and in calling their places of meeting, by a strange misnomer, lodges. But in these points is their only resemblance to the original Institution.—[Encyclopedia of Freemasonry—McClenachan.]

Freemasonry is older than the creeds of men; its only enemy is ignorance.—[Gilbert P. Brown.]

The Feast of the Butterflies.

In the track of sunbeam shining through
The blossoming hedge the wind-cars flew
As only the trains of the fairies do.

And every butterfly came down
From Lilac vale to Bluebell town,
In a velvet bodice and satin gown.

With green leaf plates was the board complete
With drops of dew for their bread and meat
And in the blue Delft cups the honeywine sweet.

And they only stayed to dance and sup
Nor cleared the table of platter and cup;
For the rain washed all the dishes up.

ROSEEN DHU.

In the gray light when moths are flying
And the weary feet go home,
There's a wild voice calling and crying
Over the cold salt foam.
Is it the voice of the sea that's wailing,
Or the wind in the clover dew?
'Tis my heart that makes lament unavailing
For you, for you, for you!
O, Roseen Dhu! O, the darkness of your eyes,
And your honey dropping smiles, and your
blossom-breathing sighs!
All the day I sorrow, in a lonely place apart,
For the sweet rose, the dark rose, the red rose
of my heart!

In the gray light when stars are fading,
And the weary dreams go home,
My soul, in the seas of silence wading,
Sobs in the cold salt foam;
And the wind companions my complaining,
From the fields of the clover dew;
And my empty arms are seeking and straining
To you, to you, to you!
O, Roseen Dhu! O, the darkness of your eyes,
And your honey dropping smiles, and your
blossom-breathing sighs!
All the day I sorrow, in a lonely place apart,
For the sweet rose, the dark rose, the red rose
of my heart!
